OURT WORK.

Married After a Six Hours' Court-

(Prom the Momphie Asalanche.) A decidedly romantic marriage was consummated yesterday in a sleeping room on Main Street, near Adams. Two women who perform on the "variety" stage, named Fanny Duanne and Annie Clare, the former being a PRINCESTONED CANTESPECS. while Miss Clare is one of the many "champion jig dancers of the world," were sitting in the room playing a social game of seven-up with two male companions. A knock at the door and a grinning son of Africa showed his ivories and a couple of baskets of fine berries with a bettle of wine. "For Miss Fanny " he said, as he handed that damsel the delicacies and a note addressed to
